

New insights

The talk was very elusive and I obtained a lot of precious information from it. The most impressive was to realize the work environment they described was very close the one I had on my previous job.

What they could expand on

They mentioned the designing team is based in Toronto. I was intrigued to find out how are the communications between the different teams and how are their routine of work.

Additionally, information on what the company are looking for when prospecting new employees would be helpful to determine if we are on the correct path on our studies.

My rate for the talk

It was a very good presentation and extremely helpful to know some companies and their environment. Talks like should happen more often, sometimes they're more important than hours long lectures.
